Teams:

3 divers per team,
we supply the boats
and skippers

Probably the most extreme tournament ever hosted in Southern Africa, the WP Rumbly Bay Spearfishing Tuna International promises to be a truly innovative experience.

Imagine sailing out of sight of land, diving to between 20 to 30 metres down off the continental shelf, and all that to try and spear a fish that is the same size as you, swims much faster, and doesn't need to come up for air!

All you need is to bring a team of 3 divers and your spearguns. Boats with professional skippers will be supplied. Think you're up for it?

We are hosting the first ever WP RUMBLY BAY SPEARFISHING TUNA INTERNATIONAL in May 2008 at Rumbly Bay, Millers Point where Cape Boat clubhouse is situated. This tournament is an innovative, brand new idea with loads of potential and probably the most extreme event ever organised in Southern Africa.

Cape Boat club is the oldest deep-sea angling club in the Western Province, all the other clubs were breakaways from CBSC as more anglers started to fish and were looking for venues and facilities closer to home. Rabitech one of South Africa's main spearing equipment owners Louis Hatting is also on the committee planning this event.

Organisation for next year's tournament has already begun and we are expecting around 12 international and club teams from all around the world to participate. CBSC supplies all the boats and a control boat for the duration of the tournament. The WP RUMBLY BAY SPEARFISHING TUNA INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE (WRBSTIC) in conjunction with WP spear fishing will be organising the spear fishing side of the Tournament.

The concept of shooting an 80kg and up Yellow fin tuna entails boarding an expensive, relatively large boat, which will run out to the Tuna feeding ground between 20 and 40 nautical miles directly south away from Cape Town. You lose sight of the Cape Point/ Table Mountain around the 15 nautical mile stage and only the deep blue ocean can be seen for miles in any direction. The Tuna usually feed off the continental shelf with the average water depth of about 600 meters. Once arriving at your chosen destination (about a 4 hour return trip) depending on weather and wave swell conditions, you have to try and shoot a fish that is at least your own size in weight yet much faster and capable of staying under water much longer than you. To add to all this you have to dive down about 20-30 meters to be able to get a shot. For a quick physics lesson to make things even worse if that is possible, every 10 meters you decent cause your body to feel another atmosphere of the earth's pressure on your lungs. Talk about having nerves of steel! Not to even mention other hidden dangers like the great white sharks that occasionally passes you by! Therefore, I do believe given the circumstances trying to spear a Yellow Fin Tuna is right up there when mentioning extreme sports.

The Tournament duration will be 4 days with the opening ceremony on the Tuesday evening, with Wednesday up to Saturday as the potential dive able days. Two official diving days will be chosen at the Captains briefing
